VOLUME XVII

COLUMBIA, ADAIR COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY JANUARY 6, 1915.

Last Thursday afternoon Mr. Frank Richardson and Miss Kate Jones, both of this place, left for Jeffersonville, Ind., where they were doubtless married either Thursday night or some time during the day Friday. Their elopement was a surprise, but it had been generally believed for some time that they would eventually get married. The groom is a young man of good habits, and, as we understand, there were no objections upon the part of the young lady's parent. They left immediately for Okla. The News joins with its best wishes, trusting that they may live long and happily and as they go hand in hand down the stream of time.

Married at Lebanon.

On December 30th, Mr. Ernest L. Winfrey, of Dunnville, and Miss Eula Morris, of Adair county, were married in the parlors of the Baptist parsonage, Lebanon.

On the evening of the 29th, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Moss, Greensburg, entertained in their beautiful home in honor of their sister, Miss Morris, who was soon to become a bride, though they had not been informed of the approaching event.

Cheery Words.

Manchester, Tenn. Dec. 30th '14.
Dear Editor:

Here I am again as usual on the 1st day of the year. This is my 8th year to send you a New Years Gift $1.00 for the News. So please accept this one dollar and remember me regularly each week during the year 1915 with your excellent paper. So wishing you and all the force a happy New Year. I am very Truly Yours,
W. D. Tarter.

Died in Oklahoma.

Mr. R. F. Paull, of this place, received a letter a day or two ago from Thackerville, Oklahoma, stating that his brother, Mr. Charles H. Paull, had died in that city on the 29th of December. He was sixty-eight years old and was born and reared in Cumberland county. He left Kentucky thirty years ago. He left a wife, one son and two daughters, the children all married. Mr. Paull was regarded as a most excellent citizen.

Almost A Century.

Mrs. Green McKinley, who lived near Glenville, this county, died last Tuesday night. She was ninety-three years old and had been an active woman all her life. She left a husband who is about the same age. She was the mother of Mr. Solomon McKinley, who lives a short distance from Columbia.

The local Odd-Fellows of this place, have arranged for a reel, showing the Odd-Fellows' Home of Kentucky. All the inmates will be shown in the picture, the buildings and every thing else of interest pertaining to the institution. It will be put on at the Parlor Circle some time in the near future, the exact date not as yet known, but will be given in a few weeks. The night these pictures will be put on, there will also be a regular show. It will be worth seeing.

Mr. S. D. Barbee and family reached their farm, one mile from Columbia, on Campbellsville pike, last Wednesday. We are glad that they have returned to Adair county. The family was reared in town, but they are close enough to be convenient to church and stores, and we trust that they will all be happy and contented. Mr. Barbee is a good farmer and there is no reason why he should not prosper on a very good plantation.

Mr. E. L. Feese, who has been a compositor in this office for several years, has accepted a position with the Anderson County News, a paper published at Lawrenceburg. Mr. Feese is a good compositor and a good worker and we are satisfied that he will give perfect satisfaction in his new position. He left with the best wishes of this office.

Mr. R. Mont Feese has purchased the Herald, a paper that has been doing a good business at Somerset. Mr. Feese is an all round newspaper man and there is no reason why he should not keep the Herald up to its present standard. The News extends its best wishes.

John W. Butler has accepted a position with the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and reported for duty at Greensburg.

School Affairs.

The public schools with the exception of two or three colored ones, have closed. Considering the difficulties attending the change of text books and the stringency of the times, good work in the main has been done. Of course some schools have not been successful. Many schools have been highly successful. So far as annual reports have been examined the attendance is about what it was last year. Dr. Taylor was mistaken as to the percentage of attendance based on census for the years 1911 and 1913 though correct in his figures for 1912. According to the records of this office the percentage of attendance based on the census in Adair county was 41.4 in 1910, 40.4 in 1911, 68.5 in 1912, and 44.5 in 1913. The best percentage made this year, so far as noted, is 66.23 in District 52, Joe Calhoun teacher, with Dist. 36, Darrell Strange teacher, a close second with 65 percent.

On account of the hard times caused by last year's drouth and the peculiarly embarrassing circumstances attending the change of text books in 1914, it was almost impossible to enforce the compulsory law, and so no special effort was made to do this. I propose next school year to enforce the compulsory law, for there will not be the same grounds then for not doing so. The school book question will be, or at least should be, out of the way. I shall ask every teacher to report promptly to the Superintendent all the known delinquents. They will be duly notified and unless sufficient excuse for non attendance is produced they will be proceeded against according to law. But I will give further notice and further explanation in due time.

I wish to say to the patrons that if any of them have not yet secured the newly adopted books that this must be done before the next school year begins. No teacher will be allowed to teach any but the adopted books on pain of forfeiting salary. The old books can be exchanged for nearly half the price of the new ones until July 1, 1915. After that date the old books cannot be exchanged for anything. Let patrons note this and act accordingly. There are yet indigent children in the county who have not been supplied with books. I wish to locate these as far as we can before the next school term begins and get them supplied before the opening of school. A happy new year to all.

Very Respectfully,
Tobias Huffaker, Supt. A. C. S.

Monday week the Adair circuit court will open. The first circuit court in the year usually brings a large crowd of people to Columbia and in this instance we look for no change in the long practiced custom. There are hundreds of people in the county who are owing this office, and we want to impress upon each one, who will be in town on that day, to call and make payment. We are paying out money all the time and it is necessary that we collect every dollar that is justly due the office. We believe our friends want to pay, their negligence being more of an oversight than a disposition not to meet their obligations. We are in Macedonia, friends, come over and help us.

Mr. Jo Rosenfield left here last Wednesday morning with his daughter, Miss Cary, who has been suffering with appendicitis, for Louisville. The object was to consult a specialist, and if necessary, an operation would follow. The young lady is quite popular and her many friends hope that she may be restored to health, and that no serious complications will follow the operation, should it be performed. She was successfully operated on Sunday.

Mr. S. W. Beck will remove his family to Campbellsville, where he has embarked in business, this week. People of Columbia have become very much attached to them and will regret to see them take their departure. Mrs. Beck has many lady friends in this place, and she will be missed by both the Church and society. The younger set will greatly miss Creel and Keith, two manly little boys. Mr. Beck and his family will be given a hearty welcome when they get ready to return to this place.

The system of book-keeping in the county clerk, circuit clerk, sheriff and county judge's offices took effect the first day of this month. Under the system and under the law, all fees will have to be paid when the work is done.

Buck Ewing, of color, was before Judge Herriford last Wednesday, charged with using profane language, directing the same to Rev. C. B. Dean. The judge fined him $25 and gave him ten days in jail.

Good News From Russell.

The Fiscal Court of Russell county met a few days ago and levied a tax to aid in building a pike from Jamestown to Russell Springs. Citizens of the county have subscribed three thousand dollars which is to be expended for the same purpose. The County will now apply for State aid to the amount of the tax and the subscription. Russell county has exhibited the right kind of spirit. She is tired of the mud, and the citizens and Fiscal Court of Adair county are urged to look to the interest of the entire population of Adair and make a levy that will bring about better conditions here at home.

The Board of Directors of the Bank of Jamestown met, a few days ago, and elected Judge W. W. Jones, this place, President, and Mr. R. F. Paull, Vice President. These two gentlemen have been directors in said bank for some time, and the institution has been doing a satisfactory business since its organization. Judge Jones and Mr. Paull are well-known financiers, safe in all business transaction, and they will give wise counsel in directing the affairs of said bank.

Mr. J. W. Walker will open his mill, on the Campbellsville pike, in a week or two for the purpose of grinding and crushing corn. He will do custom grinding and will keep the community supplied with meal and crushed corn. Meal is usually scarce in town and the people are glad this mill is to be started.

Mr. Elbert Bailey, son of Mr. Sidney Bailey, and Miss Pearl Combett, daughter of Mr. John Combett, all of the Craycraft neighborhood, were married in the parlors of the parsonage, by Rev. J. S. Chandler, on Christmas Eve. The parson joined two other couples, at his home, the same day. They, too, were from Craycraft.

Vivian Bryant was lodged in jail last week, charged with breaking into James N. Murrell's store, Craycraft, and taking therefrom twenty-one dollars in money. The case was called before Judge Herriford last Saturday, and Bryant was held to await the action of the grand jury.

PROMINENT CITIZEN

MEETS DEATH.

Mr. Frank Sinclair, Who Was Known to Every Body in the County, Dies at His Late Residence This City.

FUNERAL SERVICE METHODIST CHURCH.

The death of Mr. Frank Sinclair, which occurred at his late residence, in this city, last Sunday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock, was not a surprise, but it was regretted by the entire community, the deceased, with the exception of a few months, having been a prominent and successful merchant of Columbia for a quarter of a century.

The deceased was born and reared between Vester and Egypt, this county, becoming a citizen of Columbia about twenty-eight years ago. When he came to this place he had but little capital, a few hundred dollars. He started what was termed a "Rack-et Store" in the building now occupied by Flowers & Walker, and the business was a success, and later he opened a general dry goods store, commanding a large trade until about a year before his death, at that time selling his stock of goods to Gill & Waggener, and when the end came his effects showed a considerable estate, twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars, and out of debt.

Mr. Sinclair was a quiet, unassuming man, but at the same time he was enterprising, giving liberally to Church and for school purposes.

When quite a young man he made a profession of his faith in Christ, united with the Methodist Church, and was consistent until the summons came. For quite a number of years he was a Deacon in the Church and was also a trustee of the Graded School.

In all walks of life he was honest in his daily affairs, and his death brought great sorrow not only to his family, but to the entire community.

Soon after he reached his majority he became a Master Mason, and he was also a Royal Arch Mason.

The funeral services were held at the Methodist church Monday afternoon, the religious services being conducted by Rev. J. S. Chandler, assisted by other local ministers. At the conclusion of the church services, the remains were turned over to the Masonic Fraternity, and in the city cemetery they were buried with the usual formalities of the order.

The deceased is survived by his wife, three children, two brothers and three sisters and one half brother.

May God in his infinite wisdom comfort them in their great sorrow is the sincere wish of this entire community.

Mrs. W. F. Neat has sold his farm, four miles from Columbia, to Mr. J. C. Blair, who lives in the Pellyton district. Consideration, $2,700. Possession will be given first of March. Mr. Neat may remove to Columbia. He would make a very fine citizen.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Olie Burton, who live near Purdy, died last Tuesday night. The child was about three years old, and in some way it got hold of some morphine tablets that were in the room, swallowing two or three, with the above result.

Mr. Allen Walker and Mr. L. W. Bennett have re-traded. Mr. Walker removing to his former home on Greensburg street, and Mr. Bennett to the residence he vacated, on Cross street, near the home of Mr. Brack Massie.

Mrs. Julia Hamilton, of Edmonton, got badly hurt during the holidays. She was horseback and was enroute to Glasgow. In going up a hill the horse fell, Mrs. Hamilton falling under him, breaking one of her arms.

Mr. Walker Bryant is building a small residence on his farm near Epperson's mill. This coming spring he will build a handsome residence on a vacant lot near the home in which he now resides.

Mr. R. H. Cofer, who is 73 years old, and who lives near Cane Valley, raised 27 turkeys from 2 hens. They weighed 440 pounds and brought $52.80. Who can beat this in the turkey line?

Lost.—A bird dog. White with brown spots and short tail. Will pay a liberal reward. Guy Nell, 10-21.

Voluntary talks will be solicited at the conclusion of each topic. There will be special music at each service.

Try the Home Paper.

We believe in home people purchasing every thing they can from home merchants, and we believe that goods can be sold on the home market, better goods, just as cheap as they can be purchased from mail order houses. But there is a reason for foreign dealers getting so much trade. They let the people know what they have in stock, give prices, etc., keeping their advertising matter constantly before the people. There is a disposition of the purchaser to go where he thinks he will get the best bargain, hence he reads alluring prices in catalogues, and the home merchant becomes the loser. Let the home merchants patronize the county paper regularly during the year 1915, and they will learn at the end of the year that the money they put in advertising was profitably spent. Try it.

Notice to Trustees and Teachers.

All trustees are requested to ascertain the needs of their school districts and report them to their division chairman and not to the Superintendent. The Division Chairman will report them to the County Board at its regular meetings. All claims for supplies or material furnished to the schools should be presented to the division chairman in order to be allowed and paid.

All teachers who have not sent in their monthly and annual reports are earnestly requested to do so at once.

Respectfully,
Tobias Huffaker, Supt. A. C. S.

Cyrus Dunbar Suicides.

Mr. Cyrus Dunbar, who was fifty-five years old, well-known throughout Russell county, committed suicide by shooting at the Victoria Hotel, Louisville, last Sunday morning. His body reached here last Monday afternoon and was met by two of his brothers, Messrs. Logan and Lindsey Dunbar, who accompanied it to his late home, in Russell county, Tuesday. His untimely death was a great shock to a large circle of relatives and friends, and the cause of the rash act is shrouded in mystery.

Not Worth the Money.

Mr. Tom Judd, who is a very exemplary young man, and who teaches at Springfield, Tenn., was at home for the holidays. Soon after his arrival Rev. O. P. Bush, pastor of the Baptist Church, met him and requested that he lead the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening, and Tom consented.

Tom has a little brother about seven years old, named Harlan, and on Tuesday morning the little fellow did something that caused the older brother to chastise him, and Harlan became furiously mad.

During the day he heard some of the older members of the family speak of Tom's engagement for Wednesday night. He did not get on to it and kept quiet. Supper time came on and after most of the family had partaken, Harlan said:

"Mamma, what is it Tom is going to do to-morrow night?"

"He is going to lead the prayer meeting at the Baptist church, son."

"Well," said Harlan, "It will be no count, and I intend to tell every body that it will not be worth the money."

Proctor Knott's Famous "Duluth" Speech.

Gov. Knott's burlesque speech on "The Glories of Duluth," gained him a national reputation. The speech was delivered in the House of Representatives, January 27, 1871. The House was then considering a joint resolution extending the time to construct a railroad from the St. Croix river to the west end of Lake Superior. The speech proved a great advertisement for Duluth, and it was reprinted and sent out from that city within recent years, with notes to show how Mr. Knott's sarcastic prophecies had come true.

With regard to the transcendent merits of the gigantic enterprise contemplated in this bill. I have never entertained the shadow of a doubt.

Years ago when I first heard that there was somewhere in the vast terra incognita, somewhere in the bleak regions of the great Northwest, a stream of water known to the nomadic inhabitants of the neighborhood as the River St. Croix, I became satisfied that the construction of a railroad from that raging torrents to some point in the civilized world was essential to the happiness and prosperity of the American people, if not absolutely indispensable to the perpetuity of the republican institutions on this continent.

I felt instinctively that the boundless resources of that prolific region of sand and pine shrubbery would never be fully developed without a railroad constructed and equipped at the expense of the government—and perhaps not then. I had an abiding presentiment that perhaps some day or other the people of this whole country, irrespective of party affiliations, regardless of sectional prejudices, and "without distinction of race, color or previous condition of servitude," would rise in their majesty and demand an outlet for the enormous agricultural productions of those vast and fertile pine barrens, drained in the rainy season by the surging waters of the turbid St. Croix.

Who will have the hardihood to rise in his seat on this floor and assert that, excepting the pine bushes, the entire region would not produce vegetation enough in ten years to fatten a grasshopper? Where is the patriot who is willing that his country shall incur the peril of remaining another day without the amplest railroad connection with such an inexhaustible mine of agricultural wealth?

Who will answer for the consequences of abandoning a great and warlike people, in possession of a country like that to brood over the difference and neglect of their government? How long would it be before they would take to studying the Declaration of Independence and hatching out the damnable heresy of secession? How long before the grim demon of civil discord would rear again his horrid head in our midst, gnash loud his iron fangs and shake his crest of blighting bayonets?

I was utterly at a loss to determine where the terminus of this great and indispensable road should be until I accidentally overheard some gentlemen the other day mention the name of "Duluth." Duluth! The word fell upon my ear with peculiar and indescribable charm, like the gentle murmur of a low fountain stealing forth in the midst of roses, or the soft, sweet accents of an angel's whisper in the bright, joyous dream of sleeping innocence. Duluth! 'Twas the name for which my soul had panted for years, as the heart panteth for the water brooks.

But where was Duluth? Never, in all my limited reading, had my vision been gladdened by seeing the celestial word in print. And I felt a profound humiliation in my ignorance that its dulcet syllables had never before ravished my delighted ear. I was certain the draftsman of this bill had never heard of it, or it would have been designated as one of the termini of this road.

I asked my friends about it, but they knew nothing of it. I rushed to the library and examined all the maps I could find. I discovered in one of them a delicate, hair-like line, diverging from the Mississippi near a place marked Prescott, which I suppose was intended to represent the river St. Croix, but I could nowhere find Duluth.

Nevertheless, I was confident that it existed somewhere, and that its discovery would constitute the crowning glory of the present century, if not of all modern times. I knew it was bound to exist in the very nature of things; that the symmetry and perfection of our planetary system would be incomplete without it; that the elements of material nature would long since have resolved themselves back into a hiatus in creation as would have resulted from leaving out Duluth. In fact, sir, I was overwhelmed with the conviction that Duluth not only existed somewhere, but that, whatever it was, it was a great and glorious place.

If gentlemen will examine it, they will find Duluth, not only in the center of this map, but represented in the center of a series of concentric circles one hundred miles apart, and some of them as much as four thousand miles in diameter, embracing alike, in their tremendous sweep, the fragrant savannas of the sunlit South and the eternal solitudes of snow that mantles the ice-bound North.

How these circles were perhaps, one of the most primordial mysteries that the most skillful paleologist will never be able to explain. But the fact is, sir, Duluth is pre-eminently a central place, for I have been told by gentlemen who have been so reckless of their own personal safety as to venture away into those awful regions where Duluth is supposed to be, that it is so exactly in the center of the visible universe that the sky comes down at precisely the same distance all around it.

Then, sir, there is the climate of Duluth, unquestionably the most salubrious and delightful to be found anywhere on the Lord's earth. Now I have always been under the impression, as I presume other gentlemen have, that in the region around Lake Superior it was cold enough for at least nine months in the year to freeze the smokestack off a locomotive. But I see it represented on this map that Duluth is situated exactly half way between the latitudes of Paris and Venice, so that gentlemen who have inhaled the exhilarating airs of the one or basked in the golden sunlight of the other may see at a glance that Duluth must be a place of untold delights, a terrestrial paradise, fanned by the balmy zephyrs of an eternal spring, clothed in the gorgeous sheen of ever-blooming flowers, and vocal with the silvery melody of nature's choicest songsters.

As to the commercial resources of Duluth, sir, they are simply illimitable and inexhaustible as shown by this map. I see it stated here that there is a vast scope of territory, embracing an area of over two million square miles, rich in every element of material wealth, and commercial prosperity, all tributary to Duluth.

And here, sir, (still pointing to the map,) I find within a convenient distance the Piegan Indians, which, of all the many accessories to the glory of Duluth, I consider by far the most inestimable.

And here, sir, recurring to this man, I find in the immediate vicinity of the Piegans "vast herds of buffalo" and "immense fields of rich wheat lands."

Here you will observe (pointing to the map) are the buffaloes, directly between the Piegans and Duluth; and here, right on the road to Duluth are the Creeks. Now, sir, when the buffaloes are sufficiently fat from grazing on these immense wheat fields, you see it will be the easiest thing in the world for the Piegans to drive them on down, stay all night with their friends, the Creeks, and go into Duluth in the morning.

I think I see them now, sir, a vast herd of buffaloes, with their heads down, their eyes glaring, their nostrils dilated, their tongues out, and their tails curled over their backs, tearing along toward Duluth, with about a thousand Piegans on their grass-bellied ponies, yelling at their heels! On they come! And as they sweep past the Creeks they join in the chase, and away they all go, yelling, bellowing, ripping and tearing along, amid clouds of dust, until the last buffalo is safely penned in the stockyards at Duluth.

Sir, I might stand here for hours and hours and expatiate with rapture upon the gorgeous prospects of Duluth as depicted upon this map. But human life is too short and the time of this House far too valuable to allow me to linger longer upon the delightful theme. I think every gentleman on this floor is as well satisfied as I am that Duluth is destined to become the commercial metropolis of the universe and that this road should be built at once.

Nevertheless, sir, it grieves my very soul to be compelled to say that I cannot vote for the grant of lands provided for this bill.

Ah! sir, you can have no conception of the poignancy of my anguish that I am deprived of that blessed privilege! There are two insuperable obstacles in the way. In the first place, my constituents, for whom I am acting here, have no more interest in this road than they have in the great question of culinary taste now perhaps agitating the public mind of Dominica, as to whether the illutrious commissioners, who recently left this capital for that free and enlightened republic would be better fricasseed, boiled or roasted: and in the second place these lands, which I am asked to give away, alas, are not mine to bestow!

My relation to them is simply that of trustee to an express trust. And shall I ever betray that trust? Never, sir! Rather perish Duluth! Perish that paragon of cities! Rather let the freezing cyclones of the bleak Northwest bury it forever beneath the eddying sands of the raging St. Croix!

Memoirs of Napoleon In Three Volumes

The personal reminiscences of Baron de Méneval, for thirteen years private secretary to Napoleon Bonaparte, bring out, as no history can, many enlightening and interesting side lights on the character of that greatest of leaders. De Méneval's descriptions have the piquancy and interest possible only because he was an actual eye-witness of the scenes and incidents of which he writes. Their reliability and historical interest can be judged by the fact that the very conservative French Academy publicly recommends them.

Household Hints.

Should a cake be burnt on the outside through careless baking, scrape the black parts very carefully and brush over with beaten white of egg. Then dust with castor sugar, and put the cake back into the oven for five minutes, when all signs of burn will have disappeared.

Candle grease can be removed from most materials by the application of a little spirits of wine. This should be dropped on the spot and rubbed gently until the grease is worked off. Warm linseed oil applied by a wad of silk will remove candle grease from highly-polished surfaces.

The labor of boot-cleaning may be greatly reduced by the aid of a little glycerine. First brush the boots free of dust, and then apply a small quantity of glycerine with a rag. Let them stand for ten minutes, then polish with a brush. Boots treated in this way keep their polish several days.

Should the inkpot be accidentally upset on tablecloth or carpet pour a little cold water, and when cloth or carpet is rubbed dry no stain will show.

Used in water as a daily gargle, keeps the throat healthy. Used in water for cleansing the teeth it "disinfects" them and prevents their decaying.

NARRATIVE

Of the Commencement and Progress of the Revival of 1800. By the Late Rev. James M'Gready.

IN A LETTER TO A FRIEND—DATED The foregoing letter, more than one hundred years old, was sent to this office by Mrs. Sarah Bradshaw, widow of the late Capt. W. W. Bradshaw. It will doubtless be read with a great deal of interest. It deals with a revival, held in Logan county, more than a century ago. Evidently there is not a person living who attended the great religious awakening, narrated in the letter:

"Logan County, Kentucky,
October 23, 1801.

"But I promised to give you a short statement of our blessed revival; on which you will at once say, the Lord has done great things for us in the wilderness, and the solitary place has been made glad: the desert has rejoiced and blossomed as the rose.

"In the month of May, 1797, which was the spring after I came to this county, the Lord graciously visited Gasper River Congregation (an infant church then under my charge.) The doctrines of Regeneration, Faith and Repentance, which I uniformly preached, seemed to call the attention of the people to a serious inquiry. During the winter the question was often proposed to me, Is Religion a sensible thing? If I were converted would I feel it, and know it? In May, as I said before, the work began.

"A woman, who had been a professor, in full communion with the churches, found her old hope false and delusive—she was struck with deep conviction, and in a few days was filled with joy and peace in believing. She immediately visited her friends and relatives, from house to house, and warned them of their danger in a most solemn, faithful manner, and plead with them to repent and seek religion. This, as a means, was accompanied with the divine blessing to the awakening of many. About this time the ears of all in that congregation seemed to be opened to receive the word preached, and almost every sermon was accompanied with the power of God, to the awakening of sinners. During the summer about ten persons in the congregation were brought to Christ. In the fall of the year a general deadness seemed to creep on apace. Conviction and conversion work, in a great measure, ceased; and no visible alteration for the better took place, until the summer of 1793, at the administration of the sacrament of the supper, which was in July. On Monday the Lord graciously poured out His Spirit; a very general awakening took place—perhaps but few families in the congregation could be found who, less or more, were not struck with an awful sense of their lost estate. During the week following but few persons attended to worldly business, their attention to the business of their souls was so great. On the first Sabbath of September, the sacrament was administered at Muddy River (one of my congregations.) At this meeting the Lord graciously poured forth his spirit, to the awakening of many careless sinners. Through these two congregations already mentioned, and through Red River, my other congregation, a wakening work went on with power under every sermon. The people seemed to hear, as for eternity. In every house, and almost in every company, the whole conversation with people, was about the state of their souls. About this time the Rev. J. B. came here, and found Mr. R. to join him. In a little time he involved our infant churches in confusion, disputation, &c. opposed the doctrines preached here; ridiculed the whole work of the revival; formed a considerable party, &c. &c. In a few weeks this seemed to have put a final stop to the whole work, and our infant congregation remained in a state of deadness and darkness from the fall, through the winter, and until the month of July, 1799, at the administration of the sacrament at Red River. This was a very solemn time throughout. On Monday the power of God seemed to fill the congregation; the boldest, daring sinners in the country covered their faces and wept bitterly. After the congregation was dismissed, a large number of people stayed about the doors, unwilling to go away. Some of the ministers proposed to me to collect the people in the meeting-house again, and perform prayer with them; accordingly we went in, and joined in prayer and exhortation. The mighty power of God came amongst us like a shower from the everlasting hills—God's people were quickened and comforted; yea, some of them were filled with joy unspeakable, and full of glory. Sinners were powerfully alarmed and some precious souls were brought to feel the pardoning love of Jesus.

"At Gasper River (at this time under the care of Mr. Rankin, a precious instrument in the hands of God) the sacrament was administered in August. This was one of the days of the Son of Man, indeed, especially on Monday. I preached a plain gospel sermon on Heb. 11 and 16.—"The better country." A great solemnity continued during the sermon. After sermon Mr. Rankin gave a solemn exhortation—the congregation was then dismissed; but the people all kept their seats for a considerable space, whilst awful solemnity appeared in the countenances of a large majority. Presently several persons under deep convictions broke forth into a loud outcry—many fell to the ground, lay powerless, groaning, praying and crying for mercy.

As I passed through the multitude, a woman, lying in awful distress, called me to her. Said she, 'I lived in your congregation in Carolina; I was a prosessor, and often went to the communion; but I was deceived; I have no religion; I am going to hell.' In another place an old, gray-headed man lay in an agony of distress, addressing his weeping wife and children in such language as this: 'We are all going to hell together; we have lived prayerless, ungodly lives; the work of souls is yet to begin; we must get religion, or we will all be damned.' But time would fail me to mention every instance of this kind.

"At Muddy River the sacrament was administered in September. The power of God was gloriously present on this occasion. The circumstances of it are equal, if not superior to those of Gasper River. Many souls were solemnly awakened; a number, we hope, converted—whilst the people of God feasted on the hidden manna, and, with propriety, might be said to sing the new song. But the year 1800 exceeds all that my eyes ever beheld upon earth. All that I have related is only, as it were, an introduction. Although many souls in these congregations, during the three preceding years, have been savingly converted, and now give living evidences of their union to Christ; yet all that work is only like a few drops before a mighty rain, when compared with the wonders of Almighty Grace, that took place in the year 1800

"In June the sacrament was administered at Red River. This was the greatest time we had ever seen before. On Monday multitudes were struck down under awful conviction; the cries of distressed filled the whole house. There you might see profane swearers, and sabbath-breakers pricked to the heart and crying out, 'what shall we do to be saved?' There frolickers and dancers crying for mercy. There you might see little children of 10, 11 and 12 years of age, praying and crying for redemption, in the blood of Jesus, in agonies of distress. During this sacrament, and until the Tuesday following, ten persons, we believe, were savingly brought home to Christ.

"In July the sacrament was administered in Gasper River Congregation. Here multitudes crowded from all parts of the country to see a strange work, from the distance of forty, fifty, and even a hundred miles; whole families came in their wagons; between twenty and thirty wagons were brought to the place, loaded with people, and their provisions, in order to encamp at the meeting-house. On Friday nothing more appeared, during the day, than a decent solemnity. On Saturday matters continued in the same way, until in the evening. Two pious women were sitting together, conversing about their exercises; which conversation seemed to affect some of the by-standers: instantly the divine flame spread through the whole multitude. Presently you might have seen sinners lying powerless in every part of the house, praying and crying for mercy. Ministers and private Christians were kept busy during the night conversing with the distressed. This night a goodly number of awakened souls were delivered by sweet believing views of the glory, fulness, and sufficiency of Christ, to save to the uttermost. Amongst these were some little children—a striking proof of the religion of Jesus. Of many instances to which I have been an eye-witness, I shall only mention one, viz., a little girl. I stood by her whilst she lay across her mother's lap almost in despair. I was conversing with her when the first gleam of light broke in upon her mind—She started to her feet, and in an ecstasy of joy, she cried out—

War Sayings.

The great Napoleon is credited with making these striking sentences regarding war:

The sight is enough to inspire princes with a love of peace and a horror of war.

It is better to have an open enemy than a doubtful ally. My greatest fault, perhaps, was not having dethroned the king of Prussia, when I could have done so easily.

Intelligence has rights before force. Force without intelligence is nothing.

To a father who loses his children has no charms. When the heart speaks, glory is itself an illusion.

Tents are unhealthy; it is much better for the soldiers to bivouac in the open air, for then he can build a fire and sleep with warm feet. Tents are only necessary for general officers, who are obliged to read and consult their maps.

The fate of war is to be exalted in the morning and low enough at night. There is but one step from triumph to ruin.

Indecision and anarchy in leaders lead to weakness and anarchy in results.

It is in times of difficulty that great men and great nations display all the energy of their character, and become an object of their character, and become an object of admiration to posterity.

WED. JAN. 6, 1915

The worth of a good, live county newspaper to the county in which it is published, seems to be a matter of little concern to many who claim to have a great desire for the advancement of their community. The same may be said of any other line of business that depends on public patronage, but while this is true, yet there are many who back their faith by their patronage, and prove their worth to the man, firm or corporation whose enterprise tends to better public conditions or to advance in any avenue of endeavor. The paper is the medium through which communities can best come together on any forward movement, best serve its interests in advertising its resources or making its desires and wishes known. It is with the bride at the altar, the babe in the cradle and the mourner in the cemetery. It has no season of rest, no days of pass-time and no period for enjoying the pleasures that relieve the mind and rest the body from the worries and toil of stern duty. It is the "direct" telephone between friend and friend when distance forbids a face to face meeting. It is turned into hope by the optimist, and blasted in realization by the pessimist. The road over which it travels is beset with disappointments, broken pledges and promises to pay. It battles for the advancement of its section under harassing criticism of agricultural drones, extreme commercial economists and financial dead beats. Usually its editor is proof against criticism or pain, schooled in the field of hardship, and lives on the firing line all the time. When the Grim Reaper has gathered his victim, the local paper extolls his virtues and buries his follies whether it be friend or foe. Death, like love, covers many faults and magnified many virtues, and they are always reflected in the home paper. Usually the price of the county paper is only $1 per year, just 8¢ per month, and yet there are many whose liberality is too narrow to pay the price and help it over the rattle of business uncertainty. These same patriotic citizens whose pride of country and boast of citizenship never help to keep it from the grasp of hard living, yet they expect their business ventures, their social functions and their entertainments freely aired in its news columns. Finally, when earthly existence ends, the county papers, like the minister, has its say in extolling the virtues of the deceased, and usually carry him within the pearly gate. Why any one should refuse to take and pay for his county paper, is the greatest mystery of the age, the hardest act to excuse, and an error we hope may soon cease to exist.

Mr. J. M. Richardson, who has been the editor and owner of the Glasgow Times for more than thirty-five years, has leased the plant to his son, Jack Lewis Richardson, and daughter, Miss Louie Richardson. The two last named will take up the editing and publishing of this splendid paper this week. We take it that Mr. Richardson knows his own children, and having a great pride in The Times, he would not have turned it over to them without fully knowing that they were capable of running the business. Mr. Richardson's writings will be greatly missed, but that given out by his offsprings will be welcomed.

Mr. J. O. Russell, who has been favorably mentioned as a candidate to represent Adair and Cumberland in the next Legislature, was seen by a News man Monday morning. Mr. Russell stated that he was considering the matter and would make up his mind, one way or the other, and would let the people know in a short time. It is generally believed that he will comply with the wishes of the people of the district. He is a successful business man, and a person who can manage for himself, would know how to watch the interests of Adair and Cumberland.

The metropolitan papers all say that the year 1915 will be a prosperous one for the United States. If any Country should prosper, it should be one that is at peace with all mankind.

President Wilson will speak in Indianapolis Jackson's Day, the 8th of January. He is expected to defend his administration in his address.

As we gather it from papers all over the country, there are as many suits for divorce filed as there are issued licenses for marriage.

All the banks in Louisville have declared dividends, some of them increasing their dividends over the year 1913.

GIST OF WAR NEWS.

The views of Great Britain concerning the detention of American vessels by British warships were made known to Ambassador Page by Foreign Secretary Grey in London to-day. Although the formal reply to President Wilson's note has not been drafted, Earl Grey outlined the position taken by himself and his colleagues.

The French army of invasion in Alsace has made further advance, and to-day's official report from Paris says that the town of Steinbach has been entered and half of it captured. So far as the French statement shows, there have been no other changes of note in the West, although several small advances are said to have been made.

A report from Russian sources indicates that the defenders of the Galician fortress of Przemyśl, which has been under siege by the Russians for several weeks, have been reduced to desperate straits. It is said that an Austrian aeroplane brought down while attempting to enter Przemyśl was found to be loaded with food. German reports some time ago, however, said that Przemyśl was stocked with provisions sufficient for one year.

From the fragmentary and conflicting official reports of the war to-day two main tendencies are observed. In the west, along the entire front from Alsace to the North Sea, the Allies are exerting steady pressure and, according to their claims, some of which have not been disputed by Germany, they have made a slow progress almost everywhere.

In the east the defeat of the Austrians in Galicia is not denied and the Germans forces in Poland appear to have found it extremely difficult to continue their advance toward Warsaw. Berlin states that further progress is being made, but Petrograd believes their defensive is broken down.

An official statement from Petrograd indicates that one of the most sanguinary battles of the war in proportion to the numbers involved has taken place in the Trans-Caucasus. The Russians state that a Turkish column was dispersed by artillery and the Turks lost half of their number.

The Japanese Foreign Office states that no nation has requested a Japanese army be sent to Europe. It is believed in Tokio that France and Russia favor the project, but that Great Britain hesitates on account of "economic and political difficulties."

The Servian Minister to France is quoted in Paris as saying that Servia is planning an invasion of Hungary.

WARSAW MUST FALL.

Berlin, Dec. 31 (via The Hague and London, 3:11 a. m.).—Maj. Moraht, the military expert, discussing in the Tageblatt the eastern war situation, says:

"All military authorities are agreed that the Polish capital must soon be evacuated. Its value as a fortress, as is well known is slight, but the strongly fortified positions in front of the forts, it must be expected, will be well defended. Nevertheless it would require strong forces to hold them.

"It appears moreover, as if the Russian general staff attaches greater importance in brining its main forces unbroken behind the Vistula rather than develop the full strength west thereof. However, the plans of the Russian staff are unknown and hence it is not impossible that it still intends holding the region west of, the Vistula, with political prestige as the factor, despite the dangers attending such a plan.

"At any rate the defeat of the Russians north of the Pilica will settle the fate of the army operating in Galicia."

DEFEAT FOR TURKS.

Petrograd, Dec. 31 (delayed in transmission).—The following communication from the general staff of the army of the Caucasus was given out here tonight:

"The battle at Sarikamysh (in Trans-Caucasia, thirty miles southwest of Kars) against large Turkish forces, continues. Our artillery fire dispersed a strong column of Turks who endeavored to save themselves by flight after having lost half of their contingent.

"Part of the Turkish forces concentrated in the region of Yaliniz-Chame Pass are marching upon Ardahan. Ardahan is a fortified town in Trans-Caucasia, forty miles northwest of Kars. The Yaliniz-Chame Pass is southwest of Ardahan.

LAUDS SERVIDIAN TROOP.

Paris, Dec. 31 (10:55 a. m.).—An address delivered by Crown Prince Alexander of Servia, Commander-in-Chief of the Servian army, to his troops is given in a dispatch from Nish to the Havas Agency.

"Five months have passed since the enemy attacked our beloved country," said the Crown Prince. "Although we have tried by two glorious but difficult wars, we awaited the attack manfully and heroically. After having defeated the enemy once at Tser and Jadar we have by bloody and glorious combats delivered a blow harder than any they have inflicted on us to the present. Thousands of prisoners, hundreds of cannons, immense amounts of booty, which we have captured, bear witness to the enemy's defeat and our glory."

"Soldiers, I am proud to announce that no one of the enemy is now on Servian territory. We have expelled him and put him to flight. In this solemn moment, when upon our proud Belgrade the flag of victorious Servia flies, I desire before all to give recognition to your valor."

The Prince then eulogized his men, comparing them with the ancient heroes who brought glory to Servian arms.

"The end of this gigantic combat now is in sight, although not yet achieved," he continued. "Then will come a peace worthily crowned with victories for our grand Servia. Our country will be greater, more powerful and happier than ever. For that, my heroes, Servia will be grateful to you."

SPREAD OF WAR TO OTHER NATIONS IS SCENTED.

Copenhagen, Dec. 31 (via London, 11:45 a. m.).—A private dispatch received here from Berlin says that over thirty French and British warships are at present engaged in bombarding Pola, the Austrian naval base on the Adriatic, and also the seaport of Rouigno, about fifteen miles away.

There is reason to expect naval aggression on the part of the Allies at Pola. Recent reports have indicated activity in this field. Several days ago a French submarine went into the harbor of Pola, but did not return. A dispatch received in London last night described how another submarine had been successful in torpedoing the Austrian dreadnaught Viribus Unitis and other messages have indicated that an Anglo-French attack would not come as a surprise.

Amsterdam, Holland, Dec. 31 (via London, 4:52 p. m.).—What is described as an unofficial telegram, but which, nevertheless, was issued to-day by the German army headquarters, has been received here. It reads:

"Our troops in Poland are pursuing the enemy. After the battles of Lodz and Lowiez, we took more than 67,000 prisoners and many cannon and machine guns. The entire booty since the beginning of our offensive in Poland in November totals 136,600 prisoners, more than 100 cannon, and over 300 machine guns."

London, Dec. 31 (12:30 p. m.).—There are increasing indications, in the opinion of British observers of events on the continent, that a serious allied offensive movement against the whole German line in the western arena of the war will be postponed until such time as larger contingents of Lord Kitchener's new army take the field.

The loss of the Allies sustained up to the present time in the tentative thrusts forward here and there have been heavy in proportion to the gains achieved, and it is understood that the various leaders united in the opinion that the sacrifices entailed by a general advance at this time would be too great.

The turn of events in the eastern theater of hostilities, where Russia appears to be more than holding her own, necessitates nevertheless continued hard pressure against the German lines in the west to prevent them from moving any more of their troops to the eastern field.

In the West the town of La Basse, still held by the Germans, is proving to be one of the hardest problems the allied forces have to solve. The invaders have thrown up exceptionally strong earthworks around La Basse, and they have two army corps quartered in the city. To take this stronghold by direct assault would mean a terrible loss of life, but its taking is essential to any concerted move forward in order to afford protection to the communications of the Allies.

All the news reaching London from the eastern field tries to confirm the rout of the forces of Austria, which now appear to be endeavoring to make their way laboriously back over the Carpathians.

There are indications in London that the entire continental political situation, which involves Greece, Italy, Rumania and Portugal, is developing day by day. Even in the participation in the war of at least some of these States soon will become a reality. This is the view of certain of the British commentators on the situation. Among the factors contributing to this situation is Italy's occupation of Avlona and the reported racial unrest in Austria Hungary, where the Rumanian subjects of Emperor Francis Joseph are said to be on the point of rebellion, as well as Germany's continued aggression in Angola, the Portuguese possession in Western Africa.

The German air raid on the channel port of Dunkirk, in France gives basis for the opinion that visits of this kind will be more frequent from this time. It would appear that the British raid on Cuxhaven aroused in the Germans a spirit of retaliation. England, judging from the expressions appearing in the newspapers, is just as anxious to deliver blow for blow in this respect.

HEALTH OFFICER'S COLUMN.

BY U. L. TAYLOR.

It is common when one goes into the newspaper business to write what he calls a salutatory, in which he lays down his platform. He tells in that platform what he proposes to do. What policies he proposes to advocate, and what he will oppose, so that the people can tell what they may expect from the paper. I have not gone into the newspaper business, but the editor of the Adair County News has very kindly given me permission to use one column each week during the year 1915 for the promotion of the public health. I have been in the habit of visiting the schools in the county each year, and talking to the teachers and the scholars on the subject of sanitation and right living. In these talks I have audiences of from 10 to 50, and I visit them only once a year, but in this new arrangement, I will talk to an audience of several thousand, and talk to them once every week. I am a pioneer in this kind of work. No other health officer in the State, or out of it for that matter, has ever undertaken anything like it before. I was the first in the State to visit the schools. At an annual meeting of the Kentucky Medical Association 7 or 8 years ago in Louisville, some member in a talk, said he thought it would be well to have the health officer do this thing, when I told him that I had already been doing it for two years. I have continued in that business ever since that time. I was the first in any of the counties round about to begin to fumigate the houses where consumptives have died and where other people had been sick from other preventable and germ diseases. This has been a great work, but the audiences have been too small. I have never been able to get the parents out to hear me, and the trustees very rarely. The teachers have always given me their support, and done what they could to promote the public health, and I feel assured that they will continue to do so, but the Adair County News reaches an audience, including all the members of the families where the paper goes, of several thousand each week. In these articles I shall aim to discuss all preventable diseases, and give the latest phases of them, and how they may be prevented. I shall undertake to give the causes of all these diseases, and how they may be avoided. I am not in the practice of medicine, and don't propose to try to cure any body that is sick, but will continually look after the sanitary surroundings of the homes, and try to keep others from getting sick. In the building of new school houses, I shall not surrender my lawful right, to look after location, construction and especially the ventilation of them, and see that they are built according to the teachings of modern sanitation. I shall let no false modesty deter me from telling the people what they ought to do to be saved from the ravages of disease. I shall not undertake to say sharp, smart things, but do what I can to build up a strong public sentiment throughout the county in favor of the public health. I may tell an anecdote occasionally to illustrate some point I wish to enforce, but my writings shall be as solid as I can make them, and my selections from other writers shall be after the same order. I want the co-operation of all the teachers, and I am sure I shall have that. I want the co-operation of all the trustees, and I believe I shall have that, and I know that I shall have the co-operation of the superintendent of the public schools. I want the help of the doctors and the registrars, but more than all these I want the help of the magistrates, the county officers and the men and women of the whole county. In my riding over the county I shall be continually handicapped by bad roads. For more than six years I have been traveling through the mud, and that has always been my worst trouble, and I can truthfully say that I have ridden over this county more than any other living man. I hope that before many moons the people will wake up to the fact that they are needing better roads as badly as they are needing better health. I shall prosecute the hook worm campaign, and try and get the people in a better state of health.

To Teachers and the Public.

I wish to express my hearty appreciation of the self sacrificing work of those noble teachers who labored so earnestly in the Moonlight schools of this county. The results are encouraging, and these teachers did all the work of those moonlight schools without receiving one cent of pay for it. Indeed they spent some of their own money for necessary expenses in these night schools. All who have not reported to Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart will please do so at once. As a matter of information I would state that the teachers of the day schools are paid this from $35 per mo. to $47.50.

Respectfully,

Tobias Huffaker, Supt. A. C. S.

NARRATIVE

Of the Commencement and Progress of the Revival of 1800.

By the Late Rev. James M'Gready.

"O he is willing—he is come, he is come—O what a sweet Christ he is—O what a precious Christ he is—O what a fullness I see in him—O what a beauty I see in him—O why was it that I never could believe! that I never could come to Christ before, when Christ was so willing to save me?" Then turning round, she addressed sinners, and told them of the glory, willingness and preciousness of Christ, and plead with them to repent; and all in language so heavenly, and, at the same time, so rational and scriptural, that I was filled with astonishment. But were I to write you every particular of this kind that I have been an eye and ear witness to, during the two past years, it would fill many sheets of paper.

"At this sacrament a great many people from Cumberland, particularly from Shiloh congregation, came with great curiosity to see the work, yet possessed with strong prejudices against it; about five of whom, I trust, were savingly and powerfully converted before they left the place. A circumstance worthy of observation, they were sober professors in full communion. It was truly affecting to see them lying powerless, crying for mercy, and speaking to their friends and relatives, in such language as this: "O, we despised the work that we heard of in Logan; but, O, we were deceived—I have no religion; I know now there is a reality in these things: three days ago I would have despised any person that would have behaved as I am doing now; but, O, I feel the very pains of hell in my soul." This was the language of a precious soul, just before the hour of deliverance came. When they went home, their conversation to their friends and neighbors, was the means of commencing a glorious work that has overspread all the Cumberland settlements to the conversion of hundreds of precious souls. The work continued night and day at this sacrament, whilst the vast multitude continued upon the ground until Tuesday morning. According to the best computation, we believe that forty-five souls were brought to Christ on this occasion.

"Muddy River Sacrament, in all its circumstances, was equal, and in some respects superior, to that at Gasper River. This sacrament was in August. We believe about fifty persons, at this time, obtained religion.

"At Ridge Sacrament, in Cumberland, the second Sabbath in September, about forty-five souls, we believe, obtained religion. At Shiloh Sacrament, the third Sabbath in September, about seventy persons. At Mr. Craighead's Sacrament, in October, about forty persons. At the Clay-Lick Sacrament, congregation, in Logan county, in October, eight persons. At Little Muddy-Creek Sacrament in November, about twelve. At Montgomery's Meeting-house, in Cumberland, about forty. At Hopewell Sacrament, in Cumberland, in November, about twenty persons. To mention the circumstances of more private occasions, commandays preaching, and societies, would swell a letter to a volume.

"The present year has been a blessed season likewise; yet not equal to last year in conversion work. I shall just give you a list of our Sacraments, and the number, we believe, experienced religion at each, during the present year, 1801."

[My correspondent here mentions several different Sacraments, held at different places, and the number that he hopes obtained true religion, at these several solemnities, amount in all to 144 persons] He then proceeds:—

"I would just remark that, among the great numbers in our country that profess to obtain religion, I scarcely know an instance of any that gave a comfortable ground of hope to the people of God, that they had religion, and have been admitted to the privileges of the church, that have, in any degree, disgraced their profession, or given us any ground to doubt their religion.

"Were I to mention to you the rapid progress of this work, in vacant congregations, carried on by the means of a few supplies, and by praying societies—such as at Stone's-River, Cedar-Creek, Goose-Creek, the Red-Banks, the Forentain-Head, and many other places—it would be more than time, or the bounds of a letter would admit of. Mr. M'G. and myself administered the sacrament at the Red-Banks, on the Ohio, about a month ago—a vacant congregation, nearly a hundred miles distant from any regular organized society, formerly a place famed for wickedness, and a perfect synagogue of Satan. I visited them twice at an early period; Mr. R. twice, and Mr. H. once. These supplies the Lord blessed, as a means to start his work; and their praying societies were attended with the power of God, to the conversion of almost whole families. When we administered the sacrament amongst them, they appeared to be the most blessed little society I ever saw. I ordained ten elders among them, all precious Christians; three of which, two years ago, were professed deists, now living monuments of Almighty Grace."

The Scrap Book

Spilled the Water.

The late Dr. Meikle of Crief Hydr is the hero of many stories, none better known than that of his desire to induce his guests to adopt his own "temperance" principles. He became aware of the practice indulged in by some patrons of the Hydr of concealing certain cordials in their bedrooms and of ordering shaving water at bedtime to enjoy further jorums of toddy.

"SOAP WON'T HURT IT."

Meeting a servant in a corridor one night, who was staggering under a heavy tray of hot water jugs, Dr. Meikle asked her where she was going with these things. She replied that she was taking shaving water to the gentlemen. "Come here," said the doctor, leading the way to a bathroom. The maid followed in fear and trembling. The doctor pulled out a pen-knife and, taking a hunk of soap, cut it into small pieces, which he dropped into the jugs, with the caustic remark: "Soap won't hurt it. It's shaving water, you know." The curses that ensued in several bedrooms are unknown, but it is assured that, if known, they would be unprintable.—Toronto Globe

His Queer Request.

Cyril Maude tells the following story about his old friend, W. S. Penley. Penley was stopping at a country house in Brittany, France, and the morning after his arrival, finding no looking glass in his room, rang the bell. "Apportez moi un cheval," he said to the maid who answered it. The maid grinned and then, choking with laughter, ran down to her master. "Monsieur," she cried, "your friend who arrived last night is mad. He has nothing on but his dressing gown, and he asked me to bring him a horse!" The host ran up and asked Penley what on earth he wanted a "cheval" for. "Well," was Penley's reply, "we talk of a cheval glass at home, don't we? I thought 'cheval' was the French word for mirror."

THE MAID GRINNED.

She Could Lecture Them.

Mr. Frederick Townsend Martin in his book, "Things I Remember," tells a story of a titled lady, well known in English society, with very decided and outspoken opinions on certain subjects.

One day she was out at lunch and the conversation turned on the pleasures of life. Every one present gave his or her idea of what constituted enjoyment, and, at last, Lady Henry remarked in her impressive manner, "For myself, I like dinners better than anything else."

"Dinners?" exclaimed her host in a tone of great surprise. "My dear Lady Henry, surely you are not a gourmet?"

"Oh, no," drawled her ladyship. "I like dinners because I know I am certain to have a man on either side of me who can't get away."

A Fair Warning.

"Many a man goes to war without the slightest conception of what it really is," said a veteran of General Robert E. Lee's army. "In 1864 I had command of a detail made up of a dozen or two recruits that had just come up from the gulf states. The first night we were near the enemy I managed to find a deserted cabin and, after placing my picket out in front, we dug ourselves down to sleep. In the middle of the night I changed the picket, selecting for duty a young fellow who had exhibited the most intense longing to exterminate the entire northern army."

"About dawn I was awakened by the well known 'ping, ping' of bullets against the logs of the cabin and the exasperating voice of my picket. Going to the door, I saw that a small scouting party of federal soldiers had discovered signs of Confederates in the cabin and were trying to drive us out by firing from the opposite hill. I turned to my picket and gave a gasp of astonishment. The young man stood in the midst of the clearing while the bullets whistled around him. There was no sign of fear about him, but he was tremendously excited. He had dropped his musket and was waving his arms, trying to attract the attention of the enemy, and shouting at the top of his voice in tones of remonstrance:

"G-d-d, you fellows over yonder don't you all be a-shootin' in here 'phar's folks in here!"—New York Post

This is the "Thornhill" Wagon—the Wagon that Must Make Good

The best known materials—the labor of master workmen—the aid of the most ingenious modern machinery have been employed to make the Thornhill wagon.

The wheels are made with excessive care. For the spokes the manufacturers use the finest hickory—machine driven to insure the right dish. The hubs are of oak, thoroughly seasoned and banded with double refined sable iron.

The bolsters are of the best white oak. They have an iron plate at top and bottom, riveted through and through—multiplying their strength.

The "Thornhill" has a malleable front bound plate that is braced to the hounds at all points. This is an exclusive "Thornhill" feature. It prevents the gears from ever getting out of line and causing hard pulling.

"Thornhill" wagons are equipped with long sleeve malleable—non-breakable skains that insure light running, and outlast any other skain. Each skain is fitted to its axle with a Defiance machine—infallibly accurate. This machine insures the right pitch and tuck, makes light draft a certainty.

The axles are of toughest hickory—the steel axles of the best refined steel.

The sides of "Thornhill" beds are made of poplar. It costs the makers more—but it holds paint better and gives better service.

Sensible Women Know Foundation of Health

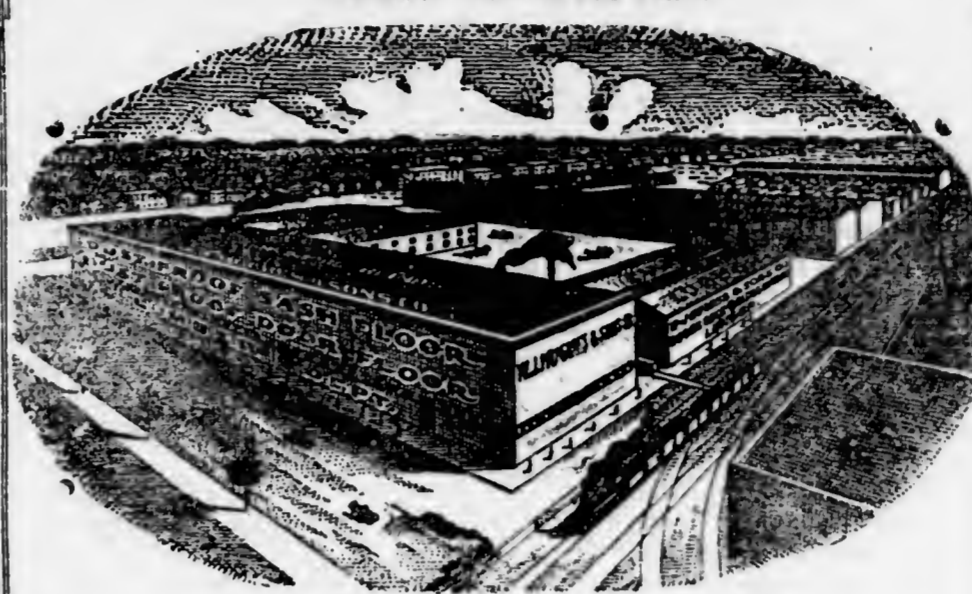

As health talks to women become more general, both in the newspapers and on the platform, the mass of women who have always known that good health cannot be found in a powder box. The externals of health may be obtained in that way, but the basis of health lies deeper, and yet so easily obtained.

The most important thing that a woman can do for herself, and about which she is often most neglected, is to watch the condition of her stomach and bowels. The weary eyes, the headache, the frequent headaches, the dizziness, the general air of lassitude, the times out of ten the result of constipation or indigestion, or both. Many simple remedies can be obtained, but the best in the estimation of most women is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

It is mild, pleasant to the taste and exactly suited to her needs. It is far superior to salts, cathartic pills, waters, and other remedies which are entirely too violent. Women should see to it that they have at least one movement of the bowels each day, and when showing any tendency to constipation should take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the amount prescribed. A brief use of it will drain the stomach and bowels, so that all forms of medicine can be dispensed with. These opinions are shared by thousands of women, after Mrs. V. J. Caldwell, 32 Claiborne St., Nashville, Tenn., and Florence Cook, Lucas, Ky.

When wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular box of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar, a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home by charge by simply addressing Dr. V. J. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

It Always Helps

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill."

I wish every suffering woman would give

Bad Cold Quickly Broken Up.

Mrs. Martha Wilcox, Gowanda, N. Y., writes: "I first used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy about eight years ago. At that time I had a hard cold and coughed most of the time. It proved to be just what I needed. It broke up the cold in a few days, and the cough entirely disappeared. I have told many of my friends of the good I received through using this medicine, and all who have used it speak of it in the highest terms. Sold by Paul Drug Co. Ad

Man Cut in Two Talked.

Walter Jones, a Pennsylvania railroad brakeman, met death in the yards at Cincinnati when his body was cut in two by four freight cars of a special train that ran him down while he was crossing the tracks.

At an inquest, held in the office of Coroner Foertmeyer and his assistants, a number of witnesses went on the stand and declared that Jones, before his death, had not only talked to them but gave them explicit directions as to what disposition should be made of his body.

The testimony of the witnesses was listened to with breathless interest. According to their story, they reached the fatally injured man as he was dying, with one-half his body inside and the other half outside the rail. He told them his name and also the address of his parents, who live at Helton, N. C. He also directed the men as to how he should be cared for and even expressed a hope that his injuries might not prove fatal. He conversed with them for several minutes before overtaken by death.

The Gist of It.

"Last December I had a very severe cold and was nearly down sick in bed. I bought two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it was only a very few days until I was completely restored to health," writes O. J. Metcalf, Weatherby, Mo. If you would know the value of this remedy, ask any one who has used it. Sold by Paul Drug Co. Ad

For the theft of 150 pennies and a plugged dime, Bernie Smith has been sentenced at Huntingdon, W. Va., to spend the remainder of his life in the state penitentiary. It was the fourth time he had been convicted of larceny and the judge sentenced him under the habitual criminal act.

Women of Sedentary Habits.

Women who get but little exercise are likely to be troubled with constipation and indigestion and will find Chamberlain's Tablets highly beneficial. Not so good as a three or four mile walk every day, but very much better than to allow the bowels to remain in a constipated condition. They are easy and pleasant to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by Paul Drug Co. Ad

Greensburg.

Greensburg and Green County have passed a quiet Christmas holiday with no tragedies or accidents to mar the pleasure. Better order prevailed in the town and fewer drunks and disorders were taken care of. With the ushering in of the New Year business interests have taken a new lease of energy and enthusiasm, and it is expected that this will be one of the greatest years of the County's history. Weather conditions have pointed to good crops for the summer, and the heavy demands from foreign countries for food supplies and other necessities will cause farm produce to bring good prices, and this County will hope to reap some of the benefits.

A surprise to her many friends here was the quiet marriage of Miss Eula Morris, of Columbia, who has made her home here with her sister, Mrs. W. M. Moss and attended the high school at this place. Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Moss, Miss Morris and Mr. Ernest Winfrey, of Dunnville, Casey County, went to Lebanon Wednesday the 30th, and were married there by Rev. Prather. The groom is a merchant and postmaster at Dunnville and is a young man of splendid ability. His bride is known for her charms of beauty and character, and has many warm friends here. She taught in the schools of this County two years ago, and this year has taught in Adair County. After a short bridal trip, Mr. and Mrs. W. are at home at Dunnville.

One of the prettiest social affairs of the Christmas season was the marriage of Miss Mary Gowen, daughter of Senator and Mrs. S. T. Gowen, and Mr. William Edward Peden, of Hardyville, which was solemnized Dec. 30th, at high noon, at the bride's home. The house was beautifully decorated with potted plants, evergreens, and cut flowers. The ceremony was said before an altar of evergreens suspended from the ceiling in a half circle and from this hung tiny wedding bells. Previous to the ceremony, Miss Ella Kerr of Campbellsville gave a violin solo, accompanied by Miss Kathleen Shreve who played selections from Mendelssohn and Loehengrin. The bride entering on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage, wore a blue cloth suit and a corsage bouquet of roses. The only attendants were the little ribbon bearers Misses Mildred Howell, Virginia Shively, Mattie Hodge, and Marguerite Moss. Mr. and Mrs. Peden left immediately for a bridal trip and after Jan. the 4th, are at home to their friends at Hardyville.

Only a few sales were held on loose-leaf market before the holidays and the offerings were of an inferior type and in very bad condition. The continued rains for ten days before the opening of the market had rendered the tobacco too heavy and wet to bring half its value and the grower was very much dissatisfied with the prices offered and the receipts thereafter were light. The sales just prior to the holidays were more satisfactory as the market had become settled and the tobacco was in better condition. The sales since the holidays have been very satisfactory and although no real good leaf has been offered, yet some crops have averaged as high as nine dollars. The market Thursday was exceptionally strong and not a single basket was rejected and every seller was joyous over the result. Representatives of the American Tobacco Co., Liggett & Myers, Burford Tobacco Co., G. O. Tuck & Co., and Cotton & Hale, besides a number of local tobacco buyers, are on the floor each day in hot competition for the weed. The management has erected an additional prize building, two stories high, 250ft x 50ft. Sales will be held on every day of the week, except Sat. until the season closes.

I am at home once more after having spent the year in Tennessee, going to music schools and teaching. I taught one Normal and a number of common singing schools.

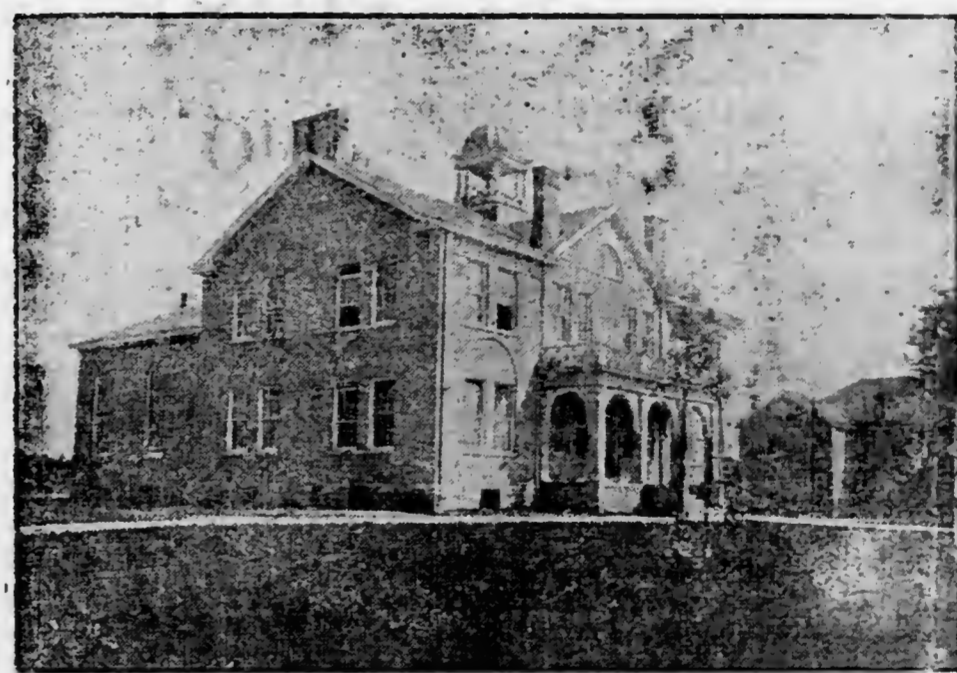

I enjoyed teaching a singing school at Donansburg, in Green Co., and one at Sparksville. We did regular Normal work in that school, but few were able to take the work, therefore, our school was small.

They did hard work and made great advancements. They engaged me to teach at any time in the future, when I have leisure.

I'm expecting to come home in April to spend the summer. I hope to be able to meet the music teachers of Adair and adjoining counties, in a great con-
